Trees cause sticky situation on Beverly Hills street

■ City Council OKs removal of trees on Willaman

BY TABOR BREWSTER

The Beverly Hills City Council on June 3 approved the removal of 70 eucalyptus trees on Willaman Drive after residents expressed concerns over sap and insects.

City Arborist Ken Pfalzgraf said the eucalyptus trees on Willaman

Drive have "failed to thrive" due to repeated replacement.

"If I was a resident [on Willaman Drive], I would not be proud of what I am seeing there," Pfalzgraf said.

He said the sap from eucalyptus trees is difficult to remove from

West Hollywood comes out strong for Pride

■ Thousands flock to the city for music festival and parade

BY SAM MULICK

More than 100,000 people came out to celebrate the LGBTQ+ community during West Hollywood's annual Pride weekend May 30-June 1. In its fourth iteration since breaking from LA Pride, attendees came together amid federal attacks on the LGBTQ+ community.

West Hollywood hosted the OUTLOUD Music Festival – featuring performances by Lizzo, Remi Wolf and Paris Hilton – as well as the WeHoPride Street Fair, Women's Freedom Festival and WeHo Pride Parade.

"I think it's important to celebrate, now more than ever, and to be loud about who we are. The current administration has made it clear that they do not care about our community and have actively been trying to take away resources that help LGBTQIA+ people," said Alyssa Policarpio, who attended the WeHoPride Street Fair on May 31. "To me, Pride isn't just parties in WeHo. It's also about using your voice, holding friends or family accountable when they do or say things that are harmful to the community and actively standing up for what's right."

English model and actress Cara Delevingne led the parade as its Guardian Icon. "Love on the Spectrum" star Pari Kim, former NFL player Chris Kluwe and filmmaker Nava Mau also marched as Icons.

In addition to the festivities, community organizations and sponsors set up tents along the Santa Monica Boulevard parade route throughout the weekend.

Councilman Danny Hang said one of his favorite moments of the weekend was handing out harm reduction materials from the city of West Hollywood's street fair booth, including testing devices, fentanyl test strips and Narcan.

"Harm reduction saves lives, and it was powerful to see our city lead

LACMA's galleries make music history

■ Harmonious public previews planned in late June

BY EDWIN FOLVEN

The Los Angeles County Museum of Art's new David Geffen Galleries will be filled with artful music on June 26-28 when the public is invited to enter the building for the first time for a special sneak peek.

Guests will tour the elevated exhibition level of the 110,000 square-foot new structure at sunset and take in the magnificent views of the city. The public tours will be followed by previews for LACMA members from June 30-July 6, which will mark the final time guests are allowed inside before the April 2026 opening. LACMA CEO and Wallis Annenberg Director Michael Govan said it will also be the last time the building is empty, as immediately afterward thousands of artworks will be installed over the next nine months.

Govan added that the public is in for a special treat during the upcoming events, which will be a

New development may replace Nate 'n Al's

■ Deli is prepared to secure new location in Beverly Hills

BY TABOR BREWSTER

Since 1945, Beverly Hills residents have flocked to Nate 'n Al's for its corned beef and pastrami sandwiches. The beloved Jewish deli is among the oldest in the Los Angeles area, and has remained a thriving landmark of the city's iconic cuisine. However, as the landlord of the 414 N. Beverly Drive property plans to redevelop the building into a three-story retail space, the future of the original location is in jeopardy.

Exhibition traces the history of L.A. with maps and art

The Los Angeles Public Library presents "UnMapping LA: Concrete Landscapes and Re-Imagined Futures" running from June 7-Sept. 21 in Central Library's Annenberg Gallery, 630 W. Fifth St.

The thought-provoking exhibition by artist and researcher Debra Scacco explores the human and environmental costs of freeway development through the lens of historic maps and contemporary artworks. To examine and reimagine the city's buried landscapes, "UnMapping LA" juxtaposes historic cartographic materials and newly commissioned contemporary artworks by Scacco. Using Sanborn fire insurance maps, documentation of changing river courses, maps of Indigenous village sites and freeway outlines, the exhibit traces the transformations of Los Angeles' ecological and cultural topographies. Archival materials reveal how policies such as redlining, freeway construction and water diversion continue to impact communities today. "UnMapping LA" illuminates the systemic forces that have dictated the city's form, forces that have elevated infrastructure and economic development over the health of ecosystems and communities.

Developed as an evolution of the artist's 2019 project "Compass Rose," "UnMapping LA" draws on years of research and collaboration. The exhibition builds upon partnerships with Oxy Arts, the Institute for the Study of Los Angeles, Occidental College Special Collections and College Archives, the Sanborn Map Collection at the Department of Geography and Environmental Studies at CSUN and the Los Angeles Public Library. The project is also a key contributor to "NE(LA) Stories," an oral history archive focused on documenting lived experiences in the city's northeast neighborhoods.

"We hope that 'UnMapping LA' will spark conversations about how our city's past continues to shape its present," City Librarian John F. Szabo said. "This exhibition is part of Los Angeles Public Library's mission to share stories that reflect the lives of Angelenos and to support civic engagement by providing access to history and culture."

"By creatively connecting historical archives with personal stories from members of the community, 'UnMapping LA' offers a powerful new way of seeing Los Angeles," Central Library Director Kren Malone said.

The public is invited to join Scacco on a walkthrough of "UnMapping LA" on Saturday, Sept. 20, at noon in the Annenberg Gallery. For information, visit lapl.org/exhibits.

Subway work keeps quick pace in June

Metro is working on the D Line extension project at many locations along Wilshire Boulevard in June. Public transit riders are reminded that Metro has closed the Wilshire/Western and Wilshire/Normandie stations on the D Line through July 25. The closure is needed to connect the existing D Line with the new subway extension project, which will run between Wilshire/Western and Westwood and will include seven new stations. During the closures, buses will run between the Wilshire/Western and Wilshire/Vermont stations to accommodate D Line passengers. Bus Shuttle 855 and Metro Lines 720 and 20 are transporting riders in the area during the closure. The B Line also runs between Union Station and the Wilshire/Vermont station, and B Line frequency is increased from every 12-minutes to every eight minutes.

Metro plans to close the intersections of Wilshire/Fairfax, Wilshire/La Brea and Wilshire/Western for repaving on different weekends in June and July.

Wilshire/Fairfax will be closed from June 13-16, and Wilshire/La Brea will be closed from June 27-30. Wilshire/Western will be closed on a weekend to be announced in July. The closures run from Friday at 9 p.m. through Monday at 6 a.m. At Wilshire/Fairfax, Wilshire Boulevard will be closed from San Diego Way to Spaulding Avenue. At Wilshire/La Brea, the closure will be located between Mansfield and Cloverdale avenues. At Wilshire/Western, the closure runs between Western Avenue and Saint Andrews Place.

Street restoration continues in June on the north side of Wilshire Boulevard near the Wilshire/La Cienega station. Two lanes on Wilshire Boulevard are open in each direction between La Cienega and San Vicente boulevards. Work is occurring on the station within a staging yard at Wilshire and La Cienega boulevards. Major demobilization work continues within the Gale Staging Yard, located at the northwest corner of Wilshire Boulevard and Gale Drive. The AKA Alley has

On Saturday, June 7, from 6 a.m.-10p.m., westbound Wilshire Boulevard will be closed at San Vicente Boulevard. The traffic control supports the installation of an irrigation line along the north side of Wilshire Boulevard.

Metro will also test electrical generators on Saturday, June 7, from 8-10 a.m., at the entrance plaza to the future La Cienega station. Crews will run the generators and monitor activity for the full two-hour period. The generators are designed to power the station during a major power outage.

Ongoing station construction is occurring at the Wilshire/Rodeo station. K-rail enclosures will remain in place along the northern and southern curb lanes of Wilshire Boulevard in June to support station construction and appendage structure and sidewalk construction. Two lanes will remain open along Wilshire Boulevard between Beverly and Crescent drives. Left turns are restricted from westbound Wilshire Boulevard to South Cañon Drive. The AKA Alley has reopened in the area.

At the Century City Constellation station, crews are preparing to remove deck panels and repair the street surface along Constellation Boulevard between Century Park East and Solar Way. The work is anticipated to begin in July and will last approximately two months. Traffic control will be implemented in five phases progressing from east to west. Following deck removal, traffic control measures will be reimplemented on Constellation Boulevard to support continued construction.

Rascón announces campaign for State Senate's 26th District

Coalition builder Sarah Rascón, a dedicated public servant with 15 years of experience serving the Northeast Los Angeles communities, is launching her campaign for California State Senate District 26.

Raised by her immigrant grandmother in El Sereno, Rascón relied on public elementary schools and social services to give her a strong start in life. She became the first generation in her family to graduate from college, and through internship opportunities, embarked on a career to help deliver resources and advance justice for Angelenos. Rascón is running for State Senate because she believes California needs to help lift up families who are experiencing the brunt of our economic, housing and environmental crises.

"Too many Angelenos are stretched thin. We're working long hours, caring for our families, and contributing to our community's well-being, yet no matter our income, we struggle with the rising costs of housing and health care. I've spent my career building coalitions and turning ideas from community members into projects that have improved community safety, climate resilience and educational outcomes. As your state senator, I'll be a champion for amplifying the voices of working families and uplifting our underserved communities," Rascón said.

Rascón has served as director of county and regional affairs for Mayor Karen Bass, deputy executive director for environmental equity with the Mountains Recreation and Conservation Authority and as a field representative for former Assemblyman Jimmy Gomez (D-Los Angeles). In the State Senate, Rascón will use her experience to ensure community members are heard and their ideas are translated into tangible solutions.

"Working together, we can help advance economic equity and social justice. In the State Senate, I'll prioritize advancing policies that improve workforce development, housing affordability, environmental justice, educational opportunity, small business assistance and support for our entertainment industry workers," Rascón said.

The 26th State Senate District is currently represented by California Sen. Maria Elena Durazo (D-Los Angeles), who announced her candidacy for Los Angeles County Supervisor and will not seek reelection to the Legislature. Senate District 26 includes Hollywood, East Hollywood, Hancock Park, Larchmont, Thai Town, Los Feliz, Koreatown and Wilshire Center. The Primary Election will take place on Tuesday, June 2, 2026.

Padilla, Schiff urge full continuation of disaster preparedness program

U.S. Sen. Alex Padilla (D-Calif.) joined Sen. Adam Schiff (D-Calif.), U.S. Rep. Jimmy Panetta (D-Santa Cruz) and a bipartisan group of California delegation members in demanding the restoration of the Federal Emergency Management Agency's Building Resilient Infrastructure and Communities program, known as BRIC. The Trump administration recently announced it is ending the BRIC program and canceling all BRIC applications from fiscal years 2020-23. The legislators called it a shortsighted move that jeopardizes pre-disaster mitigation measures and infrastructure resiliency efforts in California and throughout the country.

President Donald Trump signed the BRIC program into law as part of the 2018 Disaster Reform Act, working to recover from 2020 wildfires that were some of the deadliest and costliest in California history.

"We are deeply concerned about the impact of this decision. If FEMA decides to ultimately withdraw its federal investment, these counties will be forced to abandon these life- and infrastructure-saving projects," wrote the bipartisan coalition of lawmakers. "Ending the BRIC Program will result in higher costs for Americans, especially as natural disasters become more frequent and severe. The BRIC Program allows the state of California and its many communities to shift away from reactive disaster spending and toward research-supported, proactive investment in community resilience."

Every dollar spent on pre-disaster mitigation and preparedness saves between $6 and $13 in damages, cleanup costs and economic impact, the legislators said. California stands to lose over $1 billion in disaster resilience and mitigation funding if the Trump administration proceeds with the cancellation of the BRIC program.

Harvey Milk (1930-1978)

Harvey Milk, a U.S. Navy Veteran who served during the Korean War, was the first widely known and nationally recognized openly gay man elected to public office in the United States. In 1977 Milk won a seat on the San Francisco Board of Supervisors thanks to a canny political combination of immigrant, elderly, minority, union and gay voter support. His vast grassroots campaign and subsequent victory signaled a coming-of-age for San Francisco's LGBT population. Milk was destined to enjoy a bright future both within San Francisco's political realm as well as on the national stage. But on November 27, 1978, Milk was assassinated along with San Francisco Mayor George Moscone. Disgruntled former City Supervisor Dan White was ultimately convicted, not of first-degree murder, but of the lesser charge of voluntary manslaughter – a verdict that triggered riots in the gay community.

LACMA plans harmonious previews

"I worked so hard to see if we could get this little space of time ... the few weeks where the building would be empty before we started art installation and it would be clean and accessible to, I want to say, give it a proper blessing," Govan said. "This performance, I've been talking to Kamasi for years about it ... because I was so taken by his composition. 'Harmony of Difference' is his homage to Los Angeles, to the diversity of the people of Los Angeles. And I sort of joked with him that it was our theme song for the museum – it should be. And there was this idea that the building empty, without curtains, without art, without anything, would be resonant, like an instrument. So he came during the early part of the year, even last year once, to test it out, first with four or five musicians, and then with 25, and it works. He's been working diligently to try to do something that he's never done before. I don't know that it's been done anywhere before."

Govan said guests will enter through the north side of the building and experience the fluid music as they walk through the ever-changing galleries. The musicians will be stationed at different locations throughout the enormous structure spanning Wilshire Boulevard.

"The idea is that it fills or infuses the entire space, all three football fields of it, with sound that is connected, overlapping and resonant in space as well as time," Govan added.

Washington wrote "Harmony of Difference" in 2017, "to celebrate the beauty of humanity's diversity through a metaphor of music," he said in a statement announcing the upcoming previews.

"In music it is the combination of different notes, chords and rhythms that create beautiful songs. The same is true in life; most of humanity's greatest achievements came from the combined efforts of people of different backgrounds with different knowledge and abilities. As we come together to learn and work with each other humanity advances and grows," Washington said. "This will be the first time I will be performing the entire 'Harmony of Difference' suite in front of a live audience, and to do it in L.A., a true haven of diversity and my hometown, is really special. The Geffen Galleries has a truly unique acoustic environment that is perfect for 'Harmony of Difference.' This performance will have more than 100 musicians spread throughout the space in ensembles of varying types playing the entire suite simultaneously. As people walk through the galleries they will directly hear the musicians they are closest to while hearing the 'spirit' of the other groups. This will be a truly once in a lifetime sonic experience that I'm so excited for people to witness."

As anticipation builds for the upcoming previews and the grand opening next April, Govan said a lot of hard work lies ahead as artworks are moved inside and finishing touches are put on the building and surrounding grounds. He said a final timeline for the opening and plans for a celebration are still being formulated, but they will include events for artists and the public, and possibly a block party.

"April is around the corner in museum time. We're focused right now on making this preview beautiful, and then we're just starting to sketch out what the openings will look like," Govan said. "We just need to get through this month, and then I think we'll probably announce the specific dates. It's going to be fun. We have a lot of ideas."

The public previews will be held on June 26, 27 and 28 at 7 p.m. Tickets will be made available at lacma.org/kamasiwashington on June 12 at 10 a.m. and will be $100 for the public and $80 for LACMA members. BHUSD launches Dual Language Academy, expands counseling

The Beverly Hills Unified School District Board of Education took major action to advance academic opportunity and student success, approving the launch of a Dual Language Academy program and a significant enhancement to the BHHS Counseling Center.

The Dual Language Academy program will begin with kindergarten and first grade in fall 2025 at El Rodeo and Horace Mann Elementary. The program will expand each year to become a full K-5 model.

Students will receive instruction in English and Spanish across core subjects, developing strong academic foundations while becoming bilingual and biliterate. The program is designed to build cognitive flexibility, cross-cultural understanding and readiness for the California State Seal of Biliteracy.

"This is a long-term investment in academic excellence and global readiness," Superintendent Dr. Alex Cherniss said. "The board has taken an important step forward that will benefit generations of BHUSD students."

The board also approved an enhancement of the Beverly Hills High School Counseling Center to strengthen its focus on college access and admissions. The new model includes three additional counselors, ensuring students receive more personalized grade-level academic and college guidance. The expansion also features a full-time wellness counselor and a TK-12 director of counseling to create a streamlined support system. For information, visit bhusd.org.

Trees will be removed on Willaman Drive cars and houses, and the sap also attracts rhinoceros beetles, which weaken the trees' overall foliage.

According to a staff report, in 2024, a majority of property owners on North Willaman Drive petitioned the city to remove the trees. Property owners on South Willaman Drive also joined the petition.

The city held meetings with residents and polled them on potential tree replacements. Residents were given the options of alternating tree species on the street or a uniform tree type. Residents chose from Australian willow, crape myrtle and holly oak trees.

Approximately 61% of Willaman Drive residents responded to the survey, or 43 of 71 total addresses. According to the city, 91% of respondents favored the replacement of the eucalyptus trees.

Additionally, 84% of respondents preferred a uniform tree type on the street and 54% preferred crape myrtle trees over the two other options.

Crape myrtles are deciduous trees, meaning they shed all of their leaves in the fall as opposed to evergreen trees – including Australian willow and holly oak – which retain leaves and needles throughout the year.

Council members asked Pfalzgraf if it was made clear to residents that the crape myrtles do not have leaves for a portion of the year, to which he responded yes.

"I have some concerns over the flowers dropping off and the leaves dropping off, but it is what the residents want, and they've been informed, so I'm OK with it," Councilman Lester Friedman said.

"I have the same concern with regard to trees being bare at certain times of the year, so as long as that's been relayed to the residents, I'm in favor of the process as well," Mayor Sharona Nazarian said.

The tree removal and replacement project will cost the city approximately $200,000, with $95,500 for the removal and $105,000 for installation. The city did not receive any public comments on the tree replacement.

On behalf of the Beverly Hills City Council and community, we deplore this horrific act and call on the suspect to be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. We must have the moral courage and clarity to unite and stand up to hate, antisemitism and discrimination in all its forms."

Nazarian condemned the incident and said she is working with the city attorney, police department and restaurants to "determine what can be done to prevent this type of incident in the future."

"I am appalled at events that took place at one of our restaurants on Friday night," Nazarian said. "Diners who were simply trying to enjoy their meal were asked about their political views while being filmed ... Our No. 1 priority remains the safety and security of the community."
